 (3 semester credit hours)
 In this course, candidates examine all aspects of teaching English Language Learners in K-12 schools. School-based Language Arts programs and all core content areas are further reviewed in the context of state and federal legislative mandates on the education and access of English Language Learners (ELL). Candidates study the instructional needs of ELL and learn effective use of materials, methods, and strategies for assessing a student's English proficiency level to provide targeted instruction, supporting grade-level English listening, speaking, reading, and writing skills. In addition, candidates will learn the difference between Designated and Integrated English Language Development and incorporate Language Standards into cross-content curricular areas.

This concept is further emphasized during this follow-up course in the approved program sequence:

- EDU 62050: Content Knowledge and Instructional Practice IV: Differentiated Learning

(3 semester credit hours)

This course will provide you with the knowledge and tools to successfully implement Differentiated Instruction as a teaching strategy in your future classrooms. You will explore what differentiated instruction looks like, how to create a learning environment that focuses on student readiness and instruction that responds to student variances. You will learn how to determine student learning gaps through a task analysis of state standards that will pinpoint prerequisite skills. Through this process you will also create ongoing formative assessments that will move students towards mastery of those skills. By the end of the course you will understand the importance of student readiness, identify student interests and student learning styles as well as when it is appropriate to differentiate instruction. You will be able to implement a variety of instructional strategies that will differentiate student learning through the content, the process, the product and/or the classroom environment.
